

Sketchbook

Earlier Background Art (2013-2017)

My oldest sketches + storyboards were lost or tossed.

Experiments from the time still get nods, like

Mario ("Saki") from a vid about the Hawaiian alphabet.

Thoth's Pill was my longest and most ambitious project, traveling to writing systems

It shifted my style to focusing on 3D mesh models and computer-generated (ineart), like the lines inside of and around the image below.

The "Green Notebook", creative trove of ideas + sketches from the days when NativLang had about 5000 subscribers. The robot, AwesomeTube, is a personified reminder of the YT platform, algorithms, and the mythical channel out there that was always one step and many subs ahead.

around the world!

The story of Kwaio Taboos is still our household favorite from among the earlier linguistic tales. The art continues Thoth's PLL, complete with rendered lines and every eye "beedy".

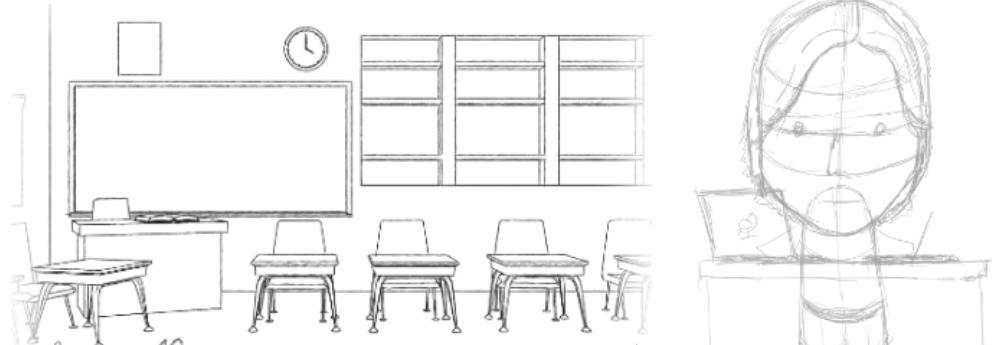

Three anims about my own highs and lows learning Kana and Kanji. Rough edges, but I'm glad I tried my hand at personal storytelling.

It's also where I started sprinkling in simple, expressive "paperchars" and tried working at making the visuals interplay with the audio instead of having them be simply what you're watching while narration happens.

Tsakonian is still an underloved anim, but, like Kwaio, it showed how "small" languages have big stories to tell. The Spartan mesh and the μαριά paperchar do play with familiar Greek icons,

There was Tibetan, then a fun Runes collab with medievalist and fellow creator Alliterative, then ... my first hit! Japanese introduced "me" as a character; Latin solidified my personal storytelling and put me back in my old classroom.

Lots of drawing happened for another three about "Aztec". At this point, I'm more often drawing characters than 3D-modeling them. I would often just start with final lines or maybe very simple construction, staying loose and aiming to communicate instead of spending more time building up a character as I came to do later on.

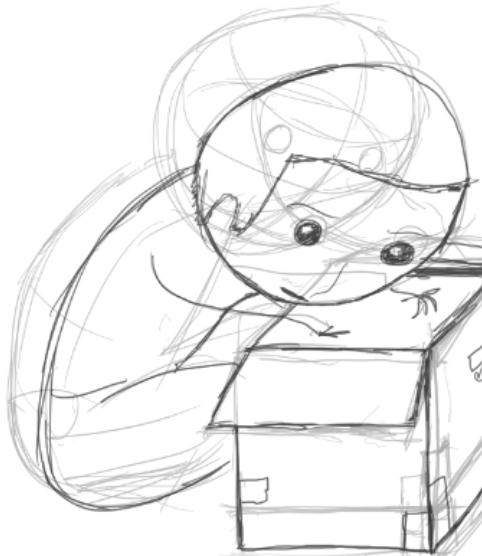

An outsider to Shakespeare and English Linguistics, I dug into the bard's sounds and followed up with a relevant tangent about a Scots letter. I thought more about the art during the research, and researched more than usual. And so "What it sounded like - and how we know" became a series.

ETRVSCAN

Now we're into the NatiLang era of sketches supported by and dedicated to patrons!

more about me - Tattered Folder box 6 grammar notes

+ tattered fldr

lib. 8th floor

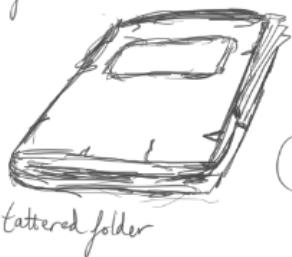

"epicness"

attic summer = family

tattered folder old char internet

anim

CALENDAR

Scribe

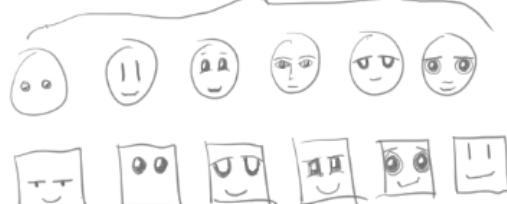

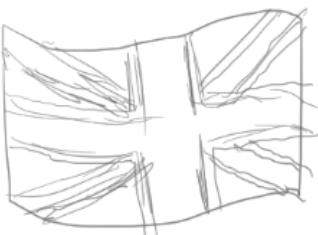

177 Middle Chinese

Kinship Terminology

recolor as in Kinship explorer app contract colors of different systems

Asymmetric Intelligibility

Gullah
↑
US English

more about me - Scars

Þ Janus sounds "funny"

Genghis Khan's Middle Mongol

→ personal - try to find M grammar edür > idür 兀 ogop 都兒 deer or larch but not very red modern photo shows wider, but 19th Ordos come thinner broaden bottom beard too dog-like, focus on more animal size

Fizuchi

おじ 相 づち 木組

HTL = yes?

on turn 1 2 1 2 1 2

VS. overlapping 1 2 1 2 1 2

"not-Gary" vs
"Gary"

Warriors trained Ironworker hammer honesty anvil

Japanese backchannels Korean backchannels

Japan different
"good listener"

MAYA Tenselessness

B's TEMPEST

MAYA { -tenses
- "before"
- "after" }

VS Deutsch { +tenses + "before" + "after" } n correct

1. non-perfective
2. perfective

GRAPHEIMES

Ashutosh Mohan Rachel Steven Stair
Jessica Goodall
Xiu Ren Yap Kit Marcos Liz Pedroza
connor johnson
Clark Fox
Florian Gaeber
Brandon Kuriyama
Leorene
William Shields
Ryan Habek
Andy Burkholder
Dmitry Stillermann
Colorless Green Hug

Ian McDowell
Glennon B. Nelson Pit Braguet
Ishmaan Ahmed
Rohan Iyer
Zachary Elliott
Jana Deppe
Trodden Soden George Roaming Millennial
ferrous allotrope Zachary Schmitz
pashawasha Mickey Blake
Theo Varenne
Bob Dowling
Sam Xu
Jerome Froelich

Jason Stefan Winter
Christian Burghardt
Johan Spaedtke 鰐竜類 Toto
Nate Pinsky
Peter Hansen
Christopher Beattie
Jon Henneberg
Isaac Silbert
Pholpat Lurongbhan ~~badmutes~~ Luna Ulf Heerijakob
Mats Kristoffersen

Since I was a kid, I've opened notebooks from the back. I don't know why. This led to a NativLang tradition, one I've kept since that Green Notebook pictured on the first page: I pen the name of each Grapheme patron on the back page. Going digital with my art, I still wanted a place to keep the tradition alive, so I built this sketchbook. Whenever I start a project and sketch out the early art, I open this digital notebook and your names inspire me!

